In photography, untold stories can be found in various forms. Photographs capture moments, emotions, and perspectives that may not have been easily seen or understood by everyone in the same way. By exploring different themes, and narratives I seek to uncover these untold stories and provide subtle clues so that the images become more meaningful. Each viewer is taken on a journey through:

Historical Context: Venturing into buildings, tunnels, rooftops, and industrial sites and documenting their decay help to reveal the history of forgotten places. By capturing the beauty of urban decay, my goal is to uncover forgotten histories, events, or cultural contexts that embody the unique stories waiting to be told.*

Personal Narratives: Just as eyes are the window to a person's soul, my photography offers a window into individual lives that otherwise stay hidden. With a critical and inquisitive look, viewers can delve into imagined personal stories, emotions, and experiences that not only expose the soul of the image, but also challenge the imagination of the viewer.*

Architectural Settings: Capturing buildings, structures, and urban landscapes, mostly without people in the frame, enhances the feeling of the unknown and the longing for an answer. Through different architectural settings, I pay attention to composition, lighting, textures and angles to highlight the design and details of buildings and cityscapes.*
